Alan, son of John and Mary Booth, was born on February 28, 1943, in Chicago, IL and grew up in Danbury, CT. He attended Eaglebrook School, Governor Dummer Academy and Williams College and remained an active alumnus. He also served as a second lieutenant in the Air Force. He worked for Owens Corning in Toledo for 31 years. He was hired as a general salesman and retired as President, Insulation - North America. Alan and his wife Lorine (deceased) traveled extensively, enjoyed entertaining and later, split their time between Ohio and Tucson. He was an avid golfer and played on many famous courses around the world and was always up for charity tournaments and a friendly wager. Alan was a long-time member of Toledo Country Club. After moving full-time to Arizona, he was given a lifetime membership so he always had a place to tee off when back in the Midwest visiting friends. He loved hockey and played through high school and college, going on to organize and coach the first Ottawa Hills High School hockey team. He played on the Gardner Signs team in Toledo, OH. He didn't hang up his skates until he was over 50 and his teammates insisted on calling him "Sir".

His family would like Alan (Albie to his classmates and Texas family) to be remembered as a loving and supportive father, husband, brother and friend. We loved him for his generosity, optimism, his particular sense of humor, and his magic tricks. Alan was preceded in death by Lorine in 2002. He is survived by two daughters, Stacey and Katie; his twin brother Peter; sister, Karen, and many nieces, nephews, and 2 grand-dogs.
